

331 F.3d 575

United States Court of Appeals,
Seventh Circuit.In the matter of: Fred E.
SCHOONOVER, Debtor–Appellant.No. 02–3440. | Argued May
19, 2003. | Decided June 9, 2003.

Debtor brought motion to avoid judicial lien on funds that he claimed were exempt under state law. Judgment creditor objected to the claim of exemption. The United States Bankruptcy Court for the Southern District of Illinois, Kenneth J. Meyers, J., granted judgment for judgment creditor. Debtor appealed. The District Court, J. Phil Gilbert, J., 285 B.R. 695, affirmed, and debtor appealed. Addressing an issue of apparent first impression at the appellate level, the Court of Appeals, Easterbrook, Circuit Judge, held that judgment creditor, as a lienholder, was not subject to the 30-day time limit for objecting to claims of exemption and, thus, his objection to debtor's claim of exemption was timely.

Affirmed.

West Headnotes (12)

[1] Exemptions

🔑 Specific exemptions in general

Illinois exemption statute that exempts debtor's right to receive public benefits has nothing to do with funds on deposit long after their receipt and commingling with debtor's other assets. S.H.A. 735 ILCS 5/12–1001(g).

5 Cases that cite this headnote

[2] Exemptions

🔑 Specific exemptions in general

Like the anti-alienation clauses in the federal benefits statutes themselves, the Illinois exemption statute exempting debtor's right to receive public benefits ensures that recipients enjoy the minimum monthly income provided by the benefits laws; it does not entitle recipients to shield hoards of cash. S.H.A. 735 ILCS 5/12–1001(g).

3 Cases that cite this headnote

[3] Exemptions

🔑 Pension and retirement funds and accounts

Necessary, under the Illinois exemption statute exempting an interest in assets held in a qualified retirement plan, is a trust or equivalent arrangement segregating the assets until retirement. S.H.A. 735 ILCS 5/12–1006.

2 Cases that cite this headnote

[4] Exemptions

🔑 Pension and retirement funds and accounts

That assets freely usable for current consumption may be traced to public benefits does not make them a tax-qualified “retirement plan” and thus does not support an exemption under the Illinois exemption statute exempting an interest in assets held in a qualified retirement plan. S.H.A. 735 ILCS 5/12–1006.

7 Cases that cite this headnote

[5] Bankruptcy

🔑 Time

From the creditors meeting, unsecured creditors have 30 days to object to any claim of exemption. Fed.Rules Bankr.Proc.Rule 4003(b), 11 U.S.C.A.

1 Cases that cite this headnote

[6] Bankruptcy

🔑 Time

Time for objecting to debtor's claim of exemption may be extended only if a creditor asks for more before the 30 days have run. Fed.Rules Bankr.Proc.Rule 4003(b), 11 U.S.C.A.

Cases that cite this headnote

[7] Bankruptcy

Time

Once the period for objecting to debtor's claims of exemption expires, creditors are out of luck even if the claim of exemption is specious. Fed.Rules Bankr.Proc.Rule 4003\(b\), 11 U.S.C.A.

2 Cases that cite this headnote

[8] BankruptcyEffect as to Securities and Liens

Creditor's right to foreclose on a lien survives or passes through the bankruptcy.

3 Cases that cite this headnote

[9] BankruptcyTime

Although general unsecured creditors must take the initiative by objecting to a debtor's claim of exemption, lienholders may wait for notice under the section of the Bankruptcy Code governing avoidance of liens on exemption impairment grounds; once they receive notice, lienholders litigate on the schedule appropriate to a proceeding under that section of the Code, not the schedule for general creditors. Bankr.Code, 11 U.S.C.A. § 522\(f\); Fed.Rules Bankr.Proc.Rule 4003\(b\), 11 U.S.C.A.

8 Cases that cite this headnote

[10] BankruptcyTime

Lienholders have more time to object to a debtor's claim of exemption than general unsecured creditors, a dispensation essential if lienholders are to enjoy any chance to watch the proceedings from afar and enforce their liens later. Bankr.Code, 11 U.S.C.A. § 522\(f\); Fed.Rules Bankr.Proc.Rules 4003\(b, d\), 9014, 11 U.S.C.A.

3 Cases that cite this headnote

[11] BankruptcyTime

Just as the Bankruptcy Code and Rules put the onus of timely objection to a debtor's claim of exemption on general unsecured creditors, so do they put the onus of contesting a lien on debtors; the clock for lienholders runs from debtor's motion under section of the Code governing avoidance of liens on exemption impairment grounds, and not from the meeting of unsecured creditors. Bankr.Code, 11 U.S.C.A. § 522\(f\); Fed.Rules Bankr.Proc.Rules 4003\(b, d\), 9014, 11 U.S.C.A.

13 Cases that cite this headnote

[12] BankruptcyTime

Judgment creditor's objection to debtor's claim of exemption in funds subject to the judicial lien was timely; although the objection was made more than 30 days after the meeting of unsecured creditors, judgment creditor was not a general unsecured creditor subject to that time limit but, instead, was required to litigate on the schedule appropriate to a proceeding under the section of the Bankruptcy Code governing avoidance of liens on exemption impairment grounds, and he did file a timely answer to debtor's lien avoidance motion. Bankr.Code, 11 U.S.C.A. § 522\(f\); Fed.Rules Bankr.Proc.Rules 4003\(b, d\), 9014, 11 U.S.C.A.

7 Cases that cite this headnote

Attorneys and Law Firms

576 Donald R. Brandon (argued), Herrin, IL, for Appellee, Edward Karr.

577 Edward C. Eytalis (argued), Carterville, IL, for Debtor–Appellant, Fred J. Schoonover.

Before EASTERBROOK, ROVNER, and EVANS, Circuit Judges.

Opinion

EASTERBROOK, Circuit Judge.

Edward Karr obtained a $100,000 judgment in Illinois court against Fred Schoonover. When Schoonover did not pay, Karr invoked the judgment to garnish about $80,000 that Schoonover had in the Bank of Herrin. Schoonover then filed a bankruptcy petition and listed the $80,000 as exempt, on the ground that the money had come from Social Security, veterans, and disability payments. He relied on 735 ILCS 5/12-1001(g) and 12-1006, state exemption statutes that a debtor may elect to use. See 11 U.S.C. § 522(b)(2)(A). Karr ignored the proceeding until Schoonover filed a motion to avoid the judicial lien. See 11 U.S.C. § 522(f). Karr then objected to the claim of exemption. After an evidentiary hearing, at which Schoonover testified that most of the money had come from the sale of antiques and not from the deposit of benefit checks, Bankruptcy Judge Meyers concluded that the funds are not exempt under state law, even if some of the money had a source in governmental benefits (as Schoonover's wife testified). The district judge affirmed. 285 B.R. 695 (S.D.Ill.2002).

[1] [2] [3] [4] Schoonover's testimony that the money came from antiques raises the question whether his claim of exemption should be classified as bankruptcy fraud. Assuredly he is not entitled to shield these funds from creditors. Section 12-1001(g) exempts "[t]he debtor's right to receive" public benefits; it has nothing to do with funds on deposit long after their receipt and commingling with the debtor's other assets. Like the anti-alienation clauses in the federal benefits statutes themselves, this law ensures that recipients enjoy the minimum monthly income provided by the benefits laws; it does not entitle recipients to shield hoards of cash. See Fayette County Hospital v. Reavis, 169 Ill.App.3d 246, 250, 119 Ill.Dec. 937, 523 N.E.2d 693, 695 (1988) ("the Illinois legislature did not intend to exempt property which is traceable to social security benefits ..."). Section 12-1006 exempts an "interest in or right, whether vested or not, to the assets held in ... a retirement plan ... if the plan ... is intended in good faith to qualify as a retirement plan under applicable provisions of the Internal Revenue Code" What is necessary is a trust or equivalent arrangement segregating the assets until retirement. That assets freely usable for current consumption may be traced to public benefits does not make them a tax-qualified "retirement plan" and thus does not support an exemption under § 12-1006. See In re Weinhoft, 275 F.3d 604 (7th Cir.2001); Auto Owners Insurance v. Berkshire, 225 Ill.App.3d 695, 167 Ill.Dec. 1100, 588 N.E.2d 1230 (1992).

In this court, Schoonover disdains the language of the statutes and disregards the opinions interpreting them. He contends instead that the bankruptcy court erred in requiring him to shoulder the "burden of proof"—by which he means the burden of producing evidence about the funds' genesis. How this could affect the outcome is a mystery. If Schoonover had not presented his own testimony (and that of his spouse) about the provenance of the funds, Karr surely would have called them to the stand for that purpose. Nothing turns on the allocation between debtor and creditor of the risk of nonpersuasion: the dispute was resolved on wholly legal grounds, so the burden of persuasion is irrelevant.

[5] [6] [7] [8] [9] [10] [11] [12] Along the way, however, Schoonover made a legal argument: that *578 Karr waited too long before contesting the claim of exemption. The creditors' meeting occurred on April 12, 2001, and from then creditors had 30 days to object to any claim of exemption. That time may be extended only if a creditor asks for more before the 30 days have run. See Fed. R. Bankr.P. 4003(b). Once the period expires, creditors are out of luck even if the claim of exemption is specious. See Taylor v. Freeland & Kronz, 503 U.S. 638, 112 S.Ct. 1644, 118 L.Ed.2d 280 (1992). Karr let the 30 days pass without action. On August 24, 2001, Schoonover filed a motion under § 522(f) asking the bankruptcy court to avoid Karr's lien. Karr filed a timely answer to this motion—but by then it was September, too late (Schoonover says) to deny that the accounts are exempt. And if they are exempt then the lien should be avoided. See Owen v. Owen, 500 U.S. 305, 111 S.Ct. 1833, 114 L.Ed.2d 350 (1991).

After May 12, 2001, no unsecured creditor could have asserted any right to payment from the funds on deposit at the Bank of Herrin. But Karr had a judicial lien, and though this may not have given him a security interest in the accounts it did give him a valuable entitlement: to wait out the bankruptcy and enforce the lien at its conclusion, unless the debtor asked the bankruptcy court for relief. "[A] creditor's right to foreclose on [a lien] survives or passes through the bankruptcy." Johnson v. Home State Bank, 501 U.S. 78, 83, 111 S.Ct. 2150, 115 L.Ed.2d 66 (1991). Although general unsecured creditors must take the initiative by objecting, lienholders may wait for notice under § 522(f). Once they receive notice, lienholders litigate on the schedule appropriate to a proceeding under § 522(f), not the schedule for general creditors.

Taylor did not get its 30-day limit from the Bankruptcy Code: all § 522(l) says is that creditors who want dibs on assets claimed as exempt must object, which Karr eventually did. The deadline came from Rule 4003(b), which deals with objections by general creditors. Motions under § 522(f) to avoid liens fall under Rule 4003(d), not Rule 4003(b)—and Rule 4003(d) does not set a 30-day schedule but instead provides that “[a] proceeding by the debtor to avoid a lien or other transfer of property exempt under § 522(f) of the Code shall be by motion in accordance with Rule 9014.” In turn, Rule 9014 leaves deadline-setting to the bankruptcy judge. The upshot is that lienholders have more time than general unsecured creditors, a dispensation essential if lienholders are to enjoy any chance to watch the proceedings from afar and enforce their liens later. Just as § 522(l) and Rule 4003(b) put the onus of timely objection on general unsecured creditors, so § 522(f) and Rules 4003(d) and 9014 put the onus of contesting a lien on debtors; the clock for lienholders runs from the motion under § 522(f) and not from the meeting of unsecured creditors. To the extent that In re Chinosorn, 248 B.R. 324, 327–28 (N.D.Ill.2000), reaches a different conclusion, it is disapproved. (As far as we can tell, this is the first appellate consideration of the question whether Rule 4003(b) and Taylor affect the time available to lienholders.) Karr's objection was timely.

AFFIRMED.

All Citations

331 F.3d 575, Bankr. L. Rep. P 78,862